Interesting facts

Almost since its inception, BPM has emphasized listening carefully and thoughtfully to company employees. Responding to their needs and ideas has resulted in an employee retention rate of approximately 90 percent. BPM listens in a variety of ways: employee opinion surveys; periodic big picture briefings of goals and objectives, best practices and success stories; one-on-one time with managers; and an employee suggestion box. The company also demonstrates its commitment to employees by offering ongoing paid training sessions on technical matters, safety, and business practices. Employees are encouraged to enroll in online courses and to obtain professional certifications. Doing so enables them to increase their pay and skill levels. As an example, BPM recently sent two technical service individuals to New York City to attend a rodent control seminar.
